Posting of principal's job cleans slate of candidates

The battle between the Wilmington School Committee and the superintendent of schools turned a corner Monday night with a school committee vote to repost the position of high school principal. The vote was four to two, with Phil Fenton and John Brooks opposed.

The move cleans the slate of the candidates previously under consideration. The search for a new principal resulted in a deadlock between the committee and the superintendent last summer. Under state approved procedures, the school committee could only vote on candidates recommended by the superintendent — and Supt. Dr. Carol Sager would not nominate the candidate favored by the school committee, William Fay, principal of the West Intermediate School.

The deadlock was temporarily resolved with the appointment of an acting principal, Richard DeRosa, who is still holding that job.

The motion to repost the position was made by Linda McMenimen. Fenton seconded the motion, stating that he was doing so only out of courtesy. He was in favor of postponing the reposting, to allow the school year to be completed without a public debate over the principalship.

Advertising for applicants will begin within a week.

Safety
Zone
program

Wilmington's "Safety Zone" program has begun. Mary Driscoll, principal of the Wildwood School is shown explaining the program to third grade pupils on Tuesday. The program will have a home in each neighborhood display a "Safety Zone" insignia, where a youngster can go in case of trouble. The Wilmington Police Department will screen residents before a sign is issued. Any interested residents should contact the principal of the nearest school.

Spotlighters 'Krazy Kamp' this weekend

The children were silent, their faces solemn with concentration as they listened carefully to Young People's Theatre Workshop coordinator Celia Bartolotti explain how the first of the 10-week Saturday sessions would be conducted.

It was an entirely different story, however, when they gathered once again in the cafeteria of the Abundant Life Christian School to recap the experiences of their first day. In response to each question concerning what they had learned in their classes, eager hands went up all over the room. Teachers and students alike deemed this beginning of a community-requested young people's theatre program a "success."

Sixty-nine children in grades three through nine registered for the Silver Lake Spotlighters' first young people's theatre workshop which began on Saturday, Jan. 21, with classes in acting, movement and vocal technique. The majority of the students are from the Wilmington - Tewksbury area, with some coming from as far away as North Andover.

"This kind of program is really needed in our community," explained Rae Chappie, workshop coordinator and teacher whose daughter, Jennifer, a grade three student, is enrolled in the program.

"The Spotlighters have been wanting to offer young people's theatre for many years, but haven't been able to find an appropriate space. They are grateful to the Abundant Life Christian School for allowing the use of their facilities for both the workshop and the performances that will complete the program in late March."

The workshop is designed in modules, so that in the first four weeks of the program each child is given an overview of all aspects of theatre, including acting, movement, costuming, props, set construction, lighting design, vocal technique, makeup and publicity - house management. Every Saturday, the students participate in three half-hour classes in these areas. Then, in the fifth week, the teachers assign more specific areas of concentration for each student: some are cast in the play, Krazy Kamp, and others are given assignments on the various production crews, based on the student's work in class over the prior four weeks.

Krazy Kamp, to be performed March 24 and 25, will be designed, built, and run completely by the students. "We want them to have the most fulfilling theatre experience possible," explained Ellen Heigham of Wilmington, one of the SLS teachers. "And the best way to do that is to give them some real hands-on opportunities. I think that's one of the ways the Silver Lake Spotlighters' program differs most from other children's theatre programs. Our students get a chance to create it all themselves."

Informational rally planned on high school renovations

"Renovate to Educate" is the cry for a rally being promoted by a parents' task force in Wilmington. The group will hold an informational rally on Saturday, April 14 on the common, giving tours of the high school to highlight conditions in need of improvement.

"We want the community to understand this modest proposal for the renovation of the high school," said Mrs. Lorna Stockbridge, coordinator of the committee. "It is important to promote this renovation and inform the public of the details. This is a no-frills renovation, and our kids deserve to have a safe and modern environment to enjoy and motivate them toward excellence in education."

The rally will come exactly one week before the annual town election, in which voters will be asked to approve an override of Prop. 2½, which would allow bonding of the $6.5 million needed to renovate the high school.

The task force will be making a strong effort to involve the community. They are planning a telephone campaign, tours of the high school, informational displays to be located throughout town, a voter registration drive. They are working through the Parent Advisory Councils throughout town.

Dr. Hugh Mahoney medical scholarship

Medical students from Greater Lowell are encouraged to apply for scholarship aid from the Dr. Hugh Mahoney Memorial Fund. Sponsored and administered by the Middlesex North Medical Society, application forms may be obtained from the Society office at 295 Varnum Avenue, Lowell, 01854, or by calling 453-7011.

Applicants must currently be enrolled in an approved medical school. The deadline for submitting scholarship applications is April 15.

According to Dr. Kenneth Peelle, former president of the Middlesex North Medical Society, "We want to support the efforts of local men and women who are studying in the field of medicine. As doctors, we are concerned about physicians getting a good education and we recognize that tuition costs are increasing in large amounts every year."

The annual scholarship awards will be presented at the Society's June meeting.

Dr. Mahoney and several members of his family were murdered in their Tewksbury home during a robbery attempt several years ago.

Wilmington gives Tewksbury May 1 water shut-off notice

With the twist of a wrench, an open gate that currently allows Wilmington water to flow into Tewksbury pipes will fall shut on or before May 1. That action has been threatened by the Wilmington Board of Water Commissioners in the past few months, but was confirmed last Thursday during a meeting between officials of both towns in the Butters Row treatment plant in Wilmington.

Some 375 homes in South Tewksbury will feel the immediate effect of the action, says Tewksbury Selectman Bill Hallisey, when they see a drastic drop in water pressure entering their homes.

Wilmington opened the gate last July in an effort to assist its neighboring town to solve an emergency water shortage problem. And even though Tewksbury agreed to pay Wilmington for the water brought across the border, Wilmington officials have been left wondering if the check's in the mail.

But, the unpaid $35,000 bill, which Tewksbury selectmen will ask special town meeting voters to pay on April 10, is just one of many reasons for the shut off. Wilmington Water Commissioners Chairman George Allan said it would be unfair to North Wilmington residents to allow the emergency connection to continue after May 1, because that section of Wilmington has had summer time water problems of its own in the past.

Another reason, said Wilmington Commissioner Arthur Smith, is the need to shut down the Butters Row treatment plant for normal maintenance in early May. It is necessary, he said, to replenish charcoal, and other chemicals which treat the water for two thirds of Wilmington. That, he said, means cutting off the supply to Tewksbury.

The official shut off notice was given to Hallisey and Tewksbury DPW Supt. Phil Pattison. Hallisey brought that message back to his fellow board members Tuesday and tried to explain Wilmington officials' reasoning by saying that they felt Tewksbury "should own up to their own problems and solve them" instead of continually buying water from neighbors.

Hallisey also said Tuesday that Wilmington officials apparently felt that if Tewksbury kept buying from neighboring towns, "we're not going to face up to the reality of solving the water problem."

Some officials have also been privately saying that Wilmington doubts the real need for emergency water when they see Tewksbury continues to build new housing units as if nothing were wrong.

Both Hallisey and Pattison agreed Thursday that Wilmington had been "more than fair."

Hallisey told the commissioners, "I realize what you are saying. It was an emergency, and Wilmington was very good to us."

Nonetheless, Hallisey showed concern about losing the Wilmington supply. He also expressed doubt that Tewksbury's contract to purchase about one million gallons of Lowell water would solve the overall problems.

Pattison described the events of July 31, 1982, when Wilmington began its emergency supply of water to Tewksbury.

"It was a hot day. People had sprinklers going."

Suddenly, he said, people in South Tewksbury were down to 20 or 30 pounds of water pressure, instead of 70. Some people had no water at all.

Will Lowell be able to supply the people of South Tewksbury with water, Pattison left that as an unanswered question.

But he had a few words to say about the system that pumps Lowell water into Tewksbury. "I see he said, 'pumping uphill.' And, he further said, the Lowell City Council had voted that Tewksbury should pay for the installation of the water main from Sackpole Street in Lowell to the Tewksbury Lowell line."

That is contrary to the assurances given the Tewksbury selectmen on the day last summer when the town voted to buy water from Lowell.

Mr. Pattison could be described as being skeptical.

Water sources exist in Tewksbury, but. . .

Tewksbury is a town with no water supplies worthy of the name. Right? Well, only partially.

There are three good aquifers under the soil of Tewksbury. An aquifer is an underground source of water that nature continuously replenishes. Engineers and water commissioners are always hoping to find one.

There is a big aquifer under the fields by Livingston Street, but it's on the Tewksbury State Hospital grounds.

There is another aquifer, thought to be big, under the Shawshen River. There is a third aquifer, also thought to be large, under the Route 495 and the Clark Road area.

Selectman Bill Hallisey of Tewksbury told the Wilmington Water Commissioners about it on the night of March 14. They were meeting in the Wilmington filtration plant, off Butters Row.

Hallisey told the commissioners that he had proposed a filtration plant like that of Wilmington's 12 years ago, to be located near the Poplar Street wells, which have been shut down for some time due to the discovery of high coliform counts. The aquifer feeding that well field is being studied in an effort to find out what caused the contamination and town officials are leery of turning the spigot back on until that study is complete.

That treatment plant was proposed when Hallisey was a water commissioner for Tewksbury, before there was any idea of a Department of Public Works.

The big aquifer, under the state hospital grounds cannot be used by the town, Hallisey told the Wilmington commissioners. The state has put its foot down on that idea.

About 15 years ago the Town of Burlington put in a pipe line, to pump water out of the Shawshen River, for a reservoir in that town. Because of that pipe line, the state has forbidden all other towns from taking water from the Shawshen. That forbiddance includes aquifers under the river.

The third aquifer, up near the Lowell line, has been ruined, again by the state. That was the place where, for many years, the state DPW stored its supplies of winter road salt in piles open to the air. As the result of seepage out of that site and drainage off Route 495 there is no fresh water in that aquifer.

Three years ago Hallisey said, he and other selectmen tried to get a water filtration plant for Tewksbury. They discussed the problem with consulting engineers, possible sites, costs, etc.

The result was a plan for a water filtration plant overlooking the Merrimack River, northerly of River Road. The plans cost the town about $750,000. A $12 million work project was drawn up.

That plan was approved, but then shot down a year later, at town meeting, Hallisey told the commissioners. Instead, the town meeting voted for a new plan of getting water from so-called deep rock wells. Hallisey didn't think much of the chances of getting water from such a source.

The town meeting then made a decision about a year ago, to purchase water from the City of Lowell. The town would spend a million dollars for large water mains, along Andover Road and North Street, to get that water.

In 20 years, Hallisey said, Tewksbury will spend $50 million to buy Lowell water. They could have built and operated that plant which was turned down for $40 million, in that same 20 years.

And, said Hallisey, one million gallons of water every day from Lowell will never be enough for the Town of Tewksbury.

There are 1800 units being built right now in Tewksbury. Wang is going to double its facility where Pierce Ford used to be. Metropolitan Life is building a larger place.

Hallisey also explained how Tewksbury works, or does not work, with the Guarantee Deposit account. That account is money deposited by builders who are putting up new homes or buildings.

People of Tewksbury do not realize the money is there to pay for water installations. They are continually taking money from the Guarantee Deposit Account to pay for non-related items that have nothing to do with water.

WILL THE REAL POLICE CHIEF STAND UP

- ★ Do we really know who runs the Police Department in Wilmington?
- ★ You might think it's Bobby Stewart, our Chief of Police, but . . .
- ★ Is it the Town Manager, is it the Board of Selectmen, or is it a subordinate of Chief Stewart's???
- ★ Bobby Stewart was appointed because of his abilities as a police officer, not because of his political affiliations.
- ★ Let's face it, morale on the Wilmington Police Department is at an all time low due largely to politics.
- ★ The Police in our town have one of the most important and dangerous jobs. If a political assignment has been made without benefit of the Chief's input, then this could very well affect everyone's PERSONAL LIBERTIES! How? Suppose an unqualified, politically assigned police officer is sent to a life threatening situation, will he or they know what to do? Can you really have any confidence in them?
- ★ Why do politics have to play such a large role in our Police Department?
- ★ The Town Manager and Board of Selectmen appointed Bobby Stewart to the position of Police Chief and our tax dollars are paying him. Let the man do the job he was hired for without interference.
- ★ If we are not going to let the Chief do his job, then why don't we eliminate his position? While we are at it, we could also eliminate the positions of Deputy Chief and Lieutenant because they probably won't be allowed to do their jobs either. Let the Board of Selectmen take complete control! Then we can stand by for complete "chaos".
- ★ By voting for 41/97A, we are simply giving our Chief of Police the opportunity to write the rules and regulations of his own department and to assign his personnel. He will still be held accountable for his actions by the Town Manager and Board of Selectmen.

AGAIN, LET'S TAKE POLITICS OUT OF OUR POLICE DEPARTMENT

Educational Update

by Dr. Carol Sager

Currently seven Wilmington teachers are participating in Project Wizard, a unique inservice institute taught by Professor Alan Cromer of Northeastern University.

Project Wizard is a nine week strongly focused training program designed to have an immediate impact on alleviating the current crisis in science education. The main thrust of this course is to expose teachers to various science projects suitable for elementary school students and to increase their skill in the performance of science demonstrations.

One of the major problems in science education today is finding qualified science teachers. Efforts to improve this situation have been concentrated on college level students hoping to convince science majors to opt for the classroom rather than the laboratory. However, these efforts have been only minimally successful. Students bound for a career watching test tubes in a science laboratory are not easily converted to the idea of harnessing the energies of youngsters in a science classroom.

In discussing the issues with colleagues in the academic community it became apparent that efforts to alleviate this situation should be started in the elementary grades in the hope of eventually increasing the pool of available candidates going into the sciences.

It is generally agreed that almost all children enjoy science up to the age of eight. After that it's downhill to the point where only a fraction of students, mostly boys, finish grade eight seriously interested in pursuing science in high school, let alone as a profession.

Elementary school teachers have pointed out that most of their training was in reading and language arts. They received very little instruction in the sciences and have not been exposed to the more interesting facets of elementary science. Consequently, many feel they are not able to make science as exciting for the youngsters as other subjects. Another concern of teachers was that they were trained to use science equipment that is not readily available in the schools and don't always feel comfortable using the science equipment that is available.

Project Wizard addresses all of these concerns. Each of the teachers participating in this course will be able to select and purchase $225 worth of science equipment for his/her school that he/she has been trained to use. Furthermore this equipment will be paid for by contributions from local industries.

Project Wizard is an unusual experiment in school-industry-university cooperation. The superintendents and assistant superintendents of Wilmington, Burlington and Woburn have worked cooperatively with Northeastern University to develop this course which is sponsored by the following local industries: Alcor, Alpha Industries, Compugraphics, General Electric - Aerospace, M - A Com, Inc. and Pacer Systems. Each of these businesses has contributed the tuition of one or more teachers and the $225 per teacher for the purchase of science equipment.

Robert N. Risch, Manager of Employees and Community and Community Relations for General Electric has been particularly supportive of Project Wizard and considers it an important breakthrough in science education today.

The Wilmington teachers participating in Project Wizard are Douglas Anderson (Project Enterprise); Yolande Girouard, Irene Keating, Martha Mahoney (grade five teachers, Shawsheen School); George Hesse, Brian Smith (grade six teachers, Shawsheen School); and Patricia Souza (grade four, Wildwood School).

Even though Project Wizard is not over, Brian Smith has already noted that the course has provided him with practical experiments that have sparked an increased interest in science among the students in his classes.

"The new and different materials presented have been a way to approach a class in a rather novel way," says Mr. Hesse.

Martha Mahoney feels that Project Wizard "has been a fine opportunity to investigate new materials."

Doug Anderson has gained new ideas for individualized instruction at varied levels of ability.

Irene Keating also notes that Project Wizard has provided her with an opportunity to share experiences with other teachers not only from Wilmington but also from Burlington and Woburn.

Wilmington is fortunate to have many able, dedicated teachers, committed to the continual professional development necessary to adequately serve the needs of youngsters in a rapidly changing, highly technological society.

Currently 15 to 18 percent of Wilmington seniors indicate that they will pursue careers in science. I do not know how many more students will leave the Wilmington Public Schools bound for careers in science, but I do know that while they are here they will receive a fine science education, K-12. They will be exposed on a regular basis to the main point of science - that one can learn about the world through disciplined observation, and they will be taught by qualified teachers who have kept up to date with current trends.

I have enjoyed your comments. Please continue to call me at my office at any time (658-2052).

Letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

On behalf of AIM, the Committee to aid and represent the disabled of Wilmington, I would like to take this opportunity to publicly thank Nickie Johnson of the Chamber of Commerce, Bill Thirkell of Munroe Paper, and Steve Crampe of Print Craft, for supplying us with our Handicapped Survey. Also, special thanks to Al Deprez and his Boy Scout Troop for delivering the surveys.

The scouts will be going door-to-door on Saturday, March 31, selling chocolate bars for their own fund raising, and have so graciously volunteered to deliver our questionnaire at the same time.

So, while munching on that good Boy Scout chocolate bar, take time to read, and being true to yourself, fill out the questionnaire where applicable and mail or drop it off, in a sealed envelope, to the Town Hall in care of AIM.

We offer no miracles, just a helping hand, with dignity and confidentiality, to what may seem, to some, as their own personal predicament.

Sincerely,
Laurence W. Curtis
AIM Chairman

Dear Larz:

On March 13 "a letter to the editor" authored by Firefighter Edward Kearns of the Tewksbury Fire department was published in several local newspapers. At best, this unfortunate correspondence expressed the negative opinions of a small group that certainly does not value the best interest of fellow town employees or the townspeople at large.

The issue in contention is in fact very serious. It involves developing the most efficient solution to provide maximum fire protection while minimizing even partial closing of the North Tewksbury Fire Station. The severity of this problem must not be falsely charged as a result of Proposition 2 1/2.

The current Tewksbury firefighters' contract requires that to maintain a full complement of personnel, the town must employ the services of 12 individuals per shift. Contrary to allegations, I am confident of the chief's leadership ability. However, it is my responsibility as a selectman to continually seek viable alternatives to resolve such pressing problems.

In large part the current problem stems from the town's obligation to honor our union contract and to limit budget growth within the constraints of Proposition 2 1/2, both requirements have been mandated by a majority vote at town meeting.

Mr. Kearns has said that certain selectmen are "ignorant" as to the every day operation of our fire department. I cannot speak for others, but I can assure Mr. Kearns that our strong differing opinions have surfaced because I deal with reality, and a strong commitment to all municipal employees who serve our town. Mr. Kearns would do well to consider teachers who must educate our future leaders; policemen who provide protection and safety to us all; public works personnel who are responsible for town infrastructures such as roads, drainage, plowing, etc.; senior citizens who deserve the right to depend upon today's leaders to assure safe and sound retirement. Above all else, Mr. Kearns should keep in mind his primary responsibility to all the citizens of this town.

When it became apparent that the fire department had exceeded budget limits for the fiscal year, Chief Chandler was asked to prepare possible solutions to provide a reduction in essential services. On March 6 the chief proposed substantial closings of the North Tewksbury Fire Station to resolve the budget crisis. Due to the fact that lengthy discussion failed to produce a unanimous concurrence with the chief's explanation, Firefighter Kearns claimed that only three selectmen fully understood the gravity of this matter, but I as one selectmen was not elected to accept hasty solutions without examining all available avenues to minimize the adverse effect caused by the closing of the north station. It is easy to appear before town meeting and request additional funding, however, this technique is not new to this particular issue and does not solve a continual problem. It is time to exercise fiscal responsibility and to stop "passing the buck to the people."

Finally, Mr. Kearns feels as though firefighters are being treated as second class citizens. I can only assure him that during my tenure in office I have accorded fair and impartial treatment to all employees. If Mr. Kearns cares to examine the record, he would find instances where dedicated teachers have not found work in their chosen profession; DPW personnel who have lost manpower along with deteriorating working conditions; police personnel who must ride one-man patrols both day and night unsure of prompt backup support; and elected officials who must orchestrate all town operations while meeting continual demands of our townspeople.

Perhaps Mr. Kearns, if you took time to examine the last three years of Proposition 2 1/2 in our town, you would agree that in all honesty your arguments are self-centered. The facts prove that after a concerted examination of the facts, you indeed have fared rather well!!!

Main St. sewer plan goes before Tewksbury board

A presentation of the planning for the Main Street sewer, between Victor Drive and the existing sewer at the Tew-Mac Airport is to be made in the Town Hall, Tewksbury, on March 22nd. The presentation will be by DPW Engineer Phil Pattison.

His presentation will be a part of the agenda for the DPW meeting that evening, and is to be the first item on the agenda.

Small amount of cash taken in Tewksbury robbery

An armed bandit made off with a small amount of cash after a 4:05 a.m. robbery on March 18 at the 'Lil Peach store on Main St., Tewksbury, according to police reports.

According to police reports, a white male subject with blonde hair appearing to be around 28-years-old and wearing a blue pullover hooded jacket entered the store, showed a handgun to the clerk and made off with about $30 cash.

The night clerk was unable to tell police whether the 5 foot 11 inch tall suspect used a vehicle to flee the scene. The clerk was also unable to tell police which direction the suspect fled in.

Wilmington school notes

On Monday night last week, the Wilmington School Committee met in its third budget meeting. Back in January, the administration presented the committee with a budget totaling $9.2 million, representing a 7.8 percent increase over last year's $8.5 million.

Interestingly enough, of the $666,860 increase proposed, $553,833 was in the form of negotiated salary increases. Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski later in the month informed the superintendent of schools that the school department could anticipate a six percent increase. Simple math indicated that the central administration budget was $200,000 too high.

In the following two meetings, the school committee set to the task of paring the budget down to the proposed six percent increase. This meant a close examination of programs, materials, textbooks and personnel, to assess their value. It seemed evident that what was foremost in the minds of most school committee people was to keep all direct services.

The superintendent suggested that $45,000 could be removed from the budget by phasing out two elementary teachers' positions. With the declining enrollment figures projected for the 84-85 year, this would maintain a 25 to 1 teacher-pupil ratio. The capital outlay budget was but by $100,000 through the removal of several items, including refrigerators.

Because of the strong commitment to computer education, the 84-85 budget contains $34,000 for the purchase of 8 computers for the elementary and intermediate levels.

Money has also been included for a drug counselor and guidance director, should the committee agree to establish these positions.

The other $50,000 cut from the budget was from the special contingency fund, which was established to cover the possibility of Wilmington being overburdened by an unexpected, large special education placement.

The budget increase of six percent passed by a 3-2 vote, with Accardi and Peterson opposed.

Loss of gasoline spawns tank, water tests

Tewksbury officials are awaiting test results to determine if there is a gasoline leak from underground tanks in the Old Colony gas station on Andover Street.

Selectman Brian Sheehan told fellow board members Tuesday he had contacted officials from the firm that owns the station, the Charter Company of Jacksonville, Florida, and was assured that they would conduct Kent-Moore tests on the steel tanks which were installed in the mid-1970s. That test is apparently similar to a pressure test where air is injected into the tank to see if the structure will hold it.

Meanwhile, the town has taken soil and water samples from the area and are awaiting the results of those tests while the state has found a pocket of gasoline in nearby Ames Pond.

Although the Charter Company has cooperated with officials thus far, the town wants to keep a close eye on the situation.

The issue came to the forefront after fire department officials discovered that a total of some 1100 gallons of gas from three tanks were unaccounted for over a 45 day period last January.

Fire Lt. Robert Fowler first noticed the 1100 gallon discrepancy during a routine check of station records on February 16. The records indicating that there was about 1100 less gallons in the ground than there should have been, he said, have been sent to headquarters in Jacksonville, Florida.

But, he said, based on current records the station is now showing overages, or more gas in the tanks than there should be.

But, concerned over the previous loss of gas, the conservation commission, of which Fowler is a member, called in the State Department of Environmental Quality Engineering (DEQE) to conduct tests of the Ames Pond. According to Sheehan, the DEQE did find trace amounts of gasoline in the pond, but are not relating the two incidents together at this time.

Although the jury is still out on where the gas in Ames Pond came from and how the station could lose 1100 gallons, "There's really nothing concrete to put your fingers on here," said Phil Pattison, DPW Supt., who was made aware of the situation earlier this month.

Officials are concerned that leaking gasoline can find its way into the ground water supply in town. There are no town wells in the Andover Street. But, water from the Ames Pond runs into Meadow Brook and eventually into the Shawsheen River.

Theories abound on the disappearance of the gas, and at this point they remain just theories. Among possibilities, officials have said, is unrecorded theft of the gasoline, improper pump readings, miscalculations on depth checks of the tanks, a leak or a disturbance to the tank caused by construction of a sewer line in the area.

While a loss of gas can indicate several things went wrong, an overage would seem to indicate that there is a mistake in readings from pumps or in manual depth checks of the underground tanks.

Test samples of water on either side of the station were taken by the department of public works and sent to Frontier Research Labs in Tyngsboro for analysis.

CLOCK Tock

THE CLOCKFOLK OF NEW ENGLAND
Wilmington

A mainspring is a flat coiled ribbon of spring steel used to supply the driving power to the gears of a clock. An average clock requiring weekly winding would have a mainspring about eight feet long. During the winding process, the mainspring is turned inward from the center creating a smaller coil with each turn until the coil is wound and the clock is fully wound. A clock mainspring can not be wound "too tightly" as long as it has not been forced beyond a full wind. If the clock is in good order and the mainspring is lubricated well, then the mainspring will unwind and the clock run whether fully or partially wound.

Credit for invention of the mainspring is attributed to Peter Henlein of Germany in about 1510. A locksmith by trade, his invention made the portable timepiece possible and started the evolution destined to produce the pocket watch.

In America, early clocks were driven by weights, but in 1836 springs began being made, the first of which were coiled brass. By 1850, steel mainsprings had replaced those of brass. Occasionally, antique clocks with brass mainsprings come into our shop for restorations. These brass mainsprings date a clock and show authenticity and we encourage replacement unless no other alternative is available.

Wilmington senior topics

Kiwanis dinner

The Wilmington Kiwanis Club will be the host to 50 senior citizens at a dinner to be held in the Knights of Columbus Hall Monday evening March 26. The dinner will be served at 7:00 with entertainment following.

The 50 names will be taken Friday morning starting at 9:00. Those who would like to attend by feel they have no way of getting there - transportation will be provided by the Kiwanis Club.

Augustine's

Buses to Augustine's will be boarded at 10:45 Thursday morning. Seniors are asked to check in at the office before getting on the buses, remembering those with a disability will be placed at the front of the bus. Those who will not be able to attend should call the Center before 9 a.m. Thursday. If a call is not received, seniors will be responsible for the entire price.

Blue Cross representative

Pat Friedman of Blue Cross will be at the Drop-in Center Thursday afternoon, March 29 at 2:00. Officials have been asked many times why Blue Cross is not covering all doctors' and hospital bills. What is the best Medex policy to carry which will supplement the Medicare coverage? (Remember, Medicare covers only 80 percent of a doctor's bill, if the doctor or hospital accepts assignment.) Those who are covered under Federal Blue Cross and Blue Shield, might be carrying too high an option. Another question we will need the answer to, will be the cost increase Blue Cross will be asking this year.

Ms. Friedman has been invited to the center for the seniors to get these questions cleared up in their minds. This subject should be of interest to all of our seniors, who should try to be at the center for Thursday, March 29, for this informative meeting.

Learning to live and cope with chronic pain

For the victim of chronic pain, whether it be back pain, headaches or other localized or diffused pain, life is often a never ending search for relief, a journey from doctor to doctor looking for cures. On this medical merry-go-round, little satisfaction is found. Health care providers may give conflicting opinions and treatments, none of which seems to work.

To minimize his or her pain, the chronic pain patient tends to spend a great deal of time in bed and avoids physical, vocational and social activity. Often family and friends reinforce this behavior, encouraging the individual not to "overdo."

In addition to the physical distress, the pain frequently causes depression and anxiety and strains the patient's relationships with others.

Many develop a dependence of medication. An estimated 90 percent of chronic pain patients misuse prescription drugs.

At Lahey Clinic Medical Center, health care professionals are helping individuals learn to live with chronic pain. Rather than trying to cure the patient's pain, the Lahey Clinic's Pain Management Program emphasizes changing the patient's perception of his or her ability to function with it. A multidisciplinary team composed of an internist, a psychologist, a physical therapist, an occupational therapist and a vocational counselor uses a variety of therapies to gradually increase the patient's level of activity so that they can return to as "normal" a lifestyle as possible.

Most patients in the comprehensive program have had an injury, often in a work-related setting, that has resulted in low back pain and sometimes even total body pain. The patient's pain has resisted multiple traditional treatment for a period of six months or more.

Before entering the Pain Management Program, patients receive a complete medical evaluation and screening. At times, it is determined that a patient should participate in a modified treatment program that involves only some aspects of the total program. Therapies included in the comprehensive program are behavior modification, cognitive-behavioral strategies, biofeedback-relaxation and, when necessary, other group programs such as depression therapy and weight control.

The Pain Management Program is conducted three times a week for eight to 12 weeks. Essential to this outpatient program is the support of a friend or family member who can provide positive reinforcement for the chronic pain patient. Unlike inpatient pain programs, Lahey's approach allows patients to learn how to increase their activities at home and to eventually return to work.

"While inpatient chronic pain programs are necessary for many chronic pain patients, a highly structured outpatient program like ours can help patients learn better pain management skills in his or her own environment," says Ronald J. Kulich, Ph.D., of the Department of Behavioral Medicine and Psychiatry. "We believe rehabilitation in the patient's natural environment is critical. Our program encourages patients to set goals for themselves, such as getting out and socializing more or joining a health club for exercise."

"The program has a 75 percent success rate with patients. These results are comparable to an inpatient program, but our approach is much less expensive than hospitalization."

Success is based on the patient's ability to return to gainful employment or to the level of prior activity and to decrease reliance on pain medications and health care services. Follow-up sessions are conducted on a monthly basis for pain program graduates.

When patients are referred to the Pain Management Program by physicians inside or outside of the Clinic, the patient's care continues to be coordinated by the primary physician. The referring physician is encouraged to conduct pre- and post-treatment evaluations.

Lechmere Sales plans Woburn Mall store

Lechmere, Inc. will open a new store in the Woburn Mall, announced C. George Scala, Lechmere's CEO and chairman. He said the store will occupy the former K-Mart site in the Woburn Mall at the intersection of Commerce Way and Mishawum Road.

The store will feature a new sophisticated computerized system which speeds the entire process of customer purchase through item pick-up.

Scala said that Lechmere emphasizes brand name merchandise of better quality and offers a broad selection in each category. He said that all merchandise is in-stock, ready to take home.

Scala said, "We are delighted to be opening a store in Woburn, the city in which our central offices and distribution center is located. We look forward to opening this exciting new store and we are confident that it will be well received by shoppers from Woburn and the surrounding areas."

The Woburn store will be the 7th Lechmere retail store in New England. Others are in Cambridge, Dedham, Danvers, Framingham and Springfield, Mass. and in Manchester, N.H.

Lechmere, Inc. is a part of Dayton Hudson Corporation, the nation's fifth largest retailing organization with 1983 sales of $6.8 billion and operating nearly 1,200 stores in 47 states.

Scala said remodeling work will begin immediately and expects it to be completed by early fall. He said the store will employ 300 persons, about half of whom will be part-time.

The Lechmere store will be modeled after the company's new "prototype" design now used in the company's Danvers and Dedham, Mass. stores and in its Manchester, N.H. store.

The "new" Lechmere store will be 85,000 sq. ft. in total size with $5,000 sq. ft. of retail selling space and will feature "four worlds" of merchandising:

Major Home Appliances including refrigerators, ranges, washers and dryers, microwave ovens, dishwashers and vacuum cleaners.

"The Courting of Marcus Dupree"

I just finished reading "The Courting of Marcus Dupree," Willie Morris' thorough account of how the South's most promising football prospect was seduced by practically every major football school in the country — and not always in the ethical manner established by the National Collegiate Football Association (i.e., no gifts, etc.).

An addendum to Morris' book could be Dupree's quitting the University of Oklahoma last October and transfer to the University of Southern Mississippi. Dupree then dropped out of there when he learned he couldn't play football until the 1985 season.

This opened the way for the United States Football League to begin their own seduction of Mississippi's 20-year-old boy wonder who's been described as a new Cadillac just waiting to be started.

The New Orleans Breakers (Remember them? They were suppose to become Boston's next super-duper sports franchise, but instead ended up in the scrap heap along side all those other sports franchises in mongrel leagues that never really took off) finally won Dupree, but a court battle to keep Dupree out of the USFL had to be settled first.

The battle was finally settled, and Dupree is now officially a Breaker. And very, very rich.

After I put "The Courting of Marcus Dupree" down on my coffee table I started to wonder. Dupree... Steve Young, that Brigham Young superstar who recently signed a contract with the LA Express in the USFL that calls for him to make $40 million over his lifetime (Will Young be the first player to be calling plays when he's eligible to collect social security? What is this columnist saying! By then he'll have more money than the entire social security system!).

I couldn't help recalling the much re-hashed story of Derek Sanderson and the Philadelphia Blazers of the old World Hockey League. I wondered if there will ever be an end to what a pro team will offer a prospect to play for them.

I imagined that a conversation between Dupree and his agent, Ken Fairley, of Hattiesburg, Miss., might have gone something like this:

Fairley: Marcus, I just got off the horn with Canizaro (New Orleans Breakers' owner Joe Canizaro). He says he's willing to

Girl Scouts making summer camp plans

Today's American Lifestyles make summer camps more necessary. Inflation has easily outdistanced many American families. The high cost of living has given families a run for their money, as well as their time. Unfortunately, travel vacations are being left behind.

This summer could be your daughter's best one ever if you cash in on the low cost of Girl Scout camps.

Patriots' Trail, New England's largest Girl Scout Council, has the perfect summer vacation for any girl entering grades two through twelve. Girl Scout Resident Camps provide girls with challenging experience and a sense of accomplishment. Girls learn new skills and make new friends in an exiting out-of-doors setting.

The campers are carefully supervised by adult counselors from all parts of the U.S. All waterfront programs are directed and supervised by certified Red Cross Water Safety Instructors.

Girl Scout Camps and locations are: Camp Toplofty, Cedar Wood, and Rice Moody at Cedar Hill Outdoor Center in Waltham; Camp Virginia, Bolton; Camp Winnetaska in Ashland; Camp Daisy in the Hingham Scout House in Hingham; Camp Bird at the Walpole Scout House in East Walpole; Camp Milton at the Milton Scout House in Milton; and Camp Malcolm at McCracken's Farm in Needham.

Resident Camps and locations are: Camp Favorite, Brewster, Ma.; Camp Menotomy, Meredith, N.H.; Camp Wabasso, Bradford, N.H.; and Computer Camp at Bentley College in Waltham, Ma.

Camp fees are reasonable and financial aid is available.

Camp sessions start in July and girls are urged to register now while there is still space open. For a free camp folder, call the Patriots' Trail Girl Scout Council, 6 St. James Avenue, Boston, Ma. 02116. Telephone (617) 482-1078.

FROM A FOREIGN LAND

A formless moon tonight,
Not round, not crescent — yet
Sending light down on this desert,
Lighting my face as I sit here
On the terrace.
And this same moon might light
my old room
Thousands of miles away.
Perhaps these rays are playing now
With my mother's hair,

Silver with silver; and her old face—
I can almost see it clear;
Gentle and kind — with that smile—
Awake she will nod and doze;
Perhaps this moon will wake you,
Mother,
As she comes on tiptoes.

Champagne brunch at Winchester Hospital

Cold air was blowing outside, but the folks at the Champagne Brunch, sponsored by the Friends of Winchester Hospital, felt like it was spring.

Seated at tables with centerpieces of jonquils, donated by Dorothea's of Winchester, the guest enjoyed the delicious food and champagne. The room had touches of spring everywhere, with the beautiful flowers given by Kean Flowers, Mahoney's Rocky Lodge, The Daisy Shop, all from Winchester, Hillside Florist of Woburn, and Ann Merry, one of the "Friends". These flowers were used as door prizes later, so went home to bring spring into the lucky winners homes. Corsages for the pianist were also donated by Dorothea's.

A sell out at both seatings, 248 people enjoyed the event. The "Friends" apologize to those turned away.

Thanks goes to many for the success of the brunch. Marcia Saltmarsh and Nancy Edgar for their fine piano music, the Committee for all their hours of work and delicious pastries, their husbands and family members for extra help, and the public for all their support, those who came and the patrons who contributed.

Watch for news next year for another March Champagne Brunch after such a success.

FOLKS ARTS CENTER BENEFIT

The Folk Arts Center of New England (FAC) will host a benefit for its Dance Musicians' Development Fund on March 31, from noon to midnight at the Brimmer and May Gym, Middlesex Road in Chestnut Hill.

The Dance Musicians' Development Fund (DMDF), administered by the Folk Arts Center, provides financial assistance to musicians who wish to study and play traditional folk dance music. Run by a seven-member committee comprised of dance musicians and dance leaders in the Boston area, the DMDF awards assistance to local musicians for any 'relevant' purpose. Grant recipients during the past two years have received funds for purposes such as music lessons and assistance toward trips to music camps and festivals in this country and abroad. One recent recipient was awarded a small grant to participate in a music tour to China.

To date, the Fund's sole source of income has been the annual benefit. At the benefit, dancers and musicians from many different groups in the area come together for the day to participate in the on-going activities. The day consists of all types of folk dancing - from New England to English and Scottish to international - all to live music. Brief performances by local groups are interspersed with the participation, and there is a fifteen-minute jambo contest to test even the best dancers' endurance.

The benefit is open to everyone, even beginners. There will be instructions for many of the dances, and there will be performances throughout the day.

Admission to the benefit is $5.00 for the afternoon (noon to 7:00) or for the evening (5:00 to midnight) or $8.00 for the entire day. For the potluck supper, everyone is requested to bring a dish and serving utensils (there are no cooking facilities at the gym), and there is a $5.00 donation requested for supplies.

For further information about the DMDF or the benefit, call the Folk Arts Center, 491-6084.

In conjunction with HealthWorks Fairs throughout New England, New England Memorial Hospital is coordinating dozens of doctors, nurses and other volunteers who will be on hand to guide any visitor 18 or older through the screening process. In addition to the free screenings a complete blood chemistry test which screens for diabetes, liver and kidney diseases, thyroid disfunctions, and other blood chemistry problems is offered for a nominal $8 fee.

Also included in the HealthWorks Fair are counseling and referral sessions, nutrition and exercise discussions, and a room full of tables and booths manned by representatives from various health related organizations. Last year more than 400 adults participated in the HealthWorks Fair and since no fairs are scheduled in Medford or Melrose this year even greater participation is expected. HealthWorks is sponsored in part by WHDH radio and WCVB-TV, as well as New England Memorial Hospital.

Campfire permits no longer necessary in National Forests

Because of the reduction in forest fires over the past twenty years the U.S. Forest Service is dropping the requirement to have a fire permit for building campfires on the White Mountain National Forest. However, the Forest Service working with the States of New Hampshire and Maine will continue to stress forest fire prevention. "Since 1921 the number of fires and the acreage of forest land burned has continued to decrease," stated Edgar Brannon, Deputy Forest Supervisor of the 750,000-acre White Mountain National Forest.

"In 1982 we had only three forest fires started by campers and these were very small. We have good cooperation from people who use the National Forest and from State Forest Fire Protection agencies who assist us in detecting and putting out fires."

Forest Service officials give credit for the reduction in fires to three factors: a well-educated public that believes in forest fire prevention; quick and efficient forest fire detection from planes flying over National Forest and fire towers run by the States of New Hampshire and Maine; and weather that has reduced the risk of fires.

Forest Service Rangers will continue their forest fire prevention campaigns and make contacts with National Forest visitors to insure that they continue to be careful with campfires.

Campfire permits are still required on State and private lands surrounding the National Forest. The permits can be acquired free of charge from any State Forest Fire Warden.

For more information on forest fire prevention and Smokey Bear, you can contact the White Mountain National Forest at Box 638, Laconia, N.H. 03247, or the State of New Hampshire, Division of Forest and Lands, Box 856, Concord, N.H. 03301, or the Maine Forest Service, State House, Station 22, Augusta, Me. 04333.

support the continued services of the North Shore Council on Alcoholism. These services include the Prevention Center for Alcohol Abuse, various residential treatment centers, the detoxification center and the Community Alcohol Safety Program (C.A.S.P.).

All North Shore residents are invited to join the North Shore Council on Alcoholism in celebrating its 25 years of community service and may attend the Brunch by purchasing tickets in advance. Tickets are $10 for adults and $5 for children under 12 years of age, and include Brunch and entertainment. Tickets may be ordered by mail by sending the correct amount with a self-addressed, stamped envelope to NSCA, 183 Newbury Street, Danvers, Ma. 01923. The Brunch will be held at the Danversport Yacht Club, 161 Elliott Street (Route 62) in Danvers. Tickets must be ordered, or reserved by telephone, by Monday, March 26. To make reservations, or for more information, call NSCA at 777-2664.

March is the month

Red Cross holds membership drive

March is the month that the American Red Cross traditionally holds its annual membership enrollment to raise funds which will enable the Red Cross chapters to provide services in their communities.

Red Cross chapters receive over 60 percent of their operating budgets from the United Way but they must turn to their communities for their remaining funds.

The list of activities provided by the Eastern Middlesex Region of the Red Cross is long and impressive. During the 1982-83 fiscal year, 125 Bloodmobiles were held in the Region's seven-community area (as of January 1984 Woburn has come into the Region), with 7,243 registered donors, served by 2,347 volunteers who totalled up over 9,000 hours of service.

During that same period Disaster Services provided assistance on 45 occasions, affecting 57 families. There were seventeen active volunteers who gave over 1,200 hour of service.

Transportation for medical care was provided by 23 volunteers who assisted 104 individuals. Our drivers made 366 trips and gave over 1,000 hours.

Educational Services offered Nursing and Health, Water Safety, First Aid, CPR, Baby Sitting and Stress Management courses. Volunteers provided over 16,500 hours of instruction time with over 7,300 individuals enrolled.

Volunteers in the Community Volunteer Services program assisted at 29 events for patients at the Veterans Administration Hospital in Bedford, with 1,000 individuals serving over 2,300 hours.

Persons wishing to make a contribution to the annual Red Cross membership enrollment, should make check payable to the Eastern Middlesex Red Cross at 786 Main Street, Melrose, Ma. 02176 or call 665-1351 for further information.

Trivia

If you wonder how parents can care for quintuplets, imagine having 99 offspring.

According to National Wildlife's Ranger Rick magazine, water snakes are known to have as many as 99 young in one litter.

On the theory that rotten eggs are near the top of the world's most-offensive-smell list, some Louisiana farmers are spraying soybean fields with a diluted egg mixture to discourage deer from nibbling on young plants, reports National Wildlife magazine.

Letter to the Editor

Greyhounds as pets

Letter to ME Editor:
NEW ENGLAND REGAP UPDATE

REGAP (Retired Greyhounds As Pets) is moving ahead in New England by leaps and bounds. Our New England branch only became active last summer but we have placed 24 greyhounds in a little under six months, most of them in Massachusetts, with some in Maine and one each in Rhode Island and New Hampshire. We currently have a couple of placements in the works in Connecticut, as well. While we are not in a numbers game, we have set a goal of a dog a week for 1984 which so far we are surpassing. We are pleased with our accomplishments to-date, but they have only given us the incentive to press on to even higher goals and accomplishments. We have recently solicited 147 newspapers in Massachusetts and about another 100 throughout the rest of New England to try to spread the word about what great pets these dogs make.

We have had exhibits at Seabrook, Belmont, Hinsdale and Lincoln greyhound tracks in 1983 and look forward to even more exhibits at New England tracks in 1984. We are getting more and more cooperation from greyhound industry people — NGA members, kennel owners, dog breeders, dog owners and greyhound tracks — many of whom are donating their time and energies to help us find responsible homes for retired greyhounds. We now have local placement reps in several areas of Massachusetts. REGAP continually welcomes volunteers in all parts of New England to help us in our work.

If you live in New England and would like to give REGAP a helping hand, please drop us a line. If you live elsewhere in the U.S. but would like to help, please contact REGAP's national office at P.O. Box 41307, St. Petersburg, Florida 33743. If you can't join us

We would like to express our thanks to all caring people who have donated time and money to help REGAP in its goals

Woodchips

By ANTHONY MANCONI

My wife and I went to the Country Club's St. Patrick's Day dance in Lynnfield. My wife wore an evening gown that was "sleeveless," "backless" and, almost, "topless." When I remarked about it, she exclaimed, "Oh, it's something I just threw on." "My gracious," I snapped, "You almost missed."

During intermission, some guy stuffed a napkin down the end of a trombone. When the band came back and started to play, the trombone player made one supreme effort to play the darn thing and blew his toupee off the top of his head and it sailed clear across the stage. A real, "hair-raising" experience.

Those of you who like to eat wild mushrooms, (those gathered in field, woods or country-side) will appreciate this true story. My parents loved them, and a neighbor would bring them by the basketful in the fall of the year.

But my father was afraid to eat them, fearing that they would be poisonous — he had no faith in the silver quarter test — so he devised this fool-proof method. He would let my mother eat them first, saying he wasn't hungry, then, when she looked hale and hearty, the next day he would courageously eat a double portion.

What he didn't know was that the mushrooms she ate were always from a previous batch already tested by him! Fortunately, in 30 years everything was o.k.

When people I meet tell me they're from Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick or Nova Scotia, I instantly identify myself as a "kinsman," by virtue of 19 wonderful years of working with them in the Boston Naval Shipyard and attending many social functions with them and their families.

I would attest, swear or take an oath that in my humble opinion, they are among the most industrious, hardworking and honest people I've ever had the pleasure of knowing.

The beautiful ladies, as I'm sure you are already aware, haven't any need for cosmetics of any kind — you can't improve perfection. My nephew, Mark O'Donnell, was saying his evening prayers before going to bed. Maureen, my sister, called out, "I can't hear you, Mark." "Gee whiz Ma," Mark replied, "I wasn't talking to you!"

A firefly backed into a fan one dark-summer night and exclaimed, "Yeow-e-delighted-no end!!!" "That's my stool you're sitting on-MOVE!!!" "Make me," I answered. So he picked me up and flung me against the wall, yelling,

"Judo, from Japan." The next night — same stool, same guy — picked me up and then threw me over his shoulders crashing to the floor, this time shouting "Karate from Korea." The third and last night I was ready for him as he came near me, I sent him sprawling to the floor as I yelled, "Tire Iron from Sears and Roebuck!!!"

I congratulate Commander George E. Hurley Jr. of Stoneham, Navy test pilot. It takes the very best to fly up in the wide blue skies from an aircraft carrier. I know because I was assigned to the Carrier Wasp and my duty station would be off the flight deck so the wheels of the planes landing would be at eye level. I didn't last very long on the U.S.S. Wasp because I could never learn which was the port or starboard side of the ship.

When an ensign asked me "What's port sailor?" I replied, "I think it's a red wine, sir, and the next day I was transferred to a fleet oiler where I skidded, slipped and slipped for the next two years. I am proud, Commander Hurley, that you are a Navy pilot, that you are from Stoneham and New England where we have a natural love for the sea. "Carry on, sir."

I took flight instructions from Steve Benson at the Tewksbury Airport. I didn't last very long there, either.

One day, as I looked over the side of the Piper Cub Trainer, I said to Steve, "Look down there.

All those people look like ants!" Steve looked and then exclaimed, "Good grief, they are ANTS. We haven't taken off yet!!!"

I'm happy that James Haggerty representing the Daily Times-Chronicle, with other public spirited citizens, support the Minuteman Boy Scouts Council. I treasure and recall with pride when I was a member of Troop 17 of the Beaver Patrol.

I was surprised when Tom pulled the car over and stopped behind a disabled motorist. In the five years in the car pool, Tom never stopped for anyone. "I have to help him. See that emblem? He's a lodge member," Tom explained. As he walked back later to get a screwdriver to adjust a faulty carburetor, I asked the stranded gentleman, "What lodge do you belong to?" "None," he said, "I bought this car last week and I haven't had time to remove that emblem." I never told Tom — at least he's a "part-time" Samaritan. So, if you buy a used car, leave the emblems on. People like Tom may help you some day.

There is a battery of lawyers in my immediate family. I asked one to file a complaint about my wife throwing things at me.

"She's thrown things at you for 30 years. Why are you complaining now?" one asked. "Because," I answered, "This is the first time she has hit me."

I was asked if my father was a blacksmith. "No," I replied, "but I saw him 'shoo' a fly once. Ken Binding should get into the auto radiator repair business because he has a naturally "radiant personality."

Remember Jack Armstrong, the "All American Boy"? Well, Peter Sullivan, Coach at Woburn High School, must have been one too, because although I have known him only a year, he is to me the All American image personified. I found out that my trousers are more important to me than my wife — there are many places I can go without my wife.

It all depends on perspective. My Aunt Maria told me she's ashamed to tell anyone that I'm her nephew. "Well," I said, "I tell everyone I'm proud that you are my Aunt." You see folks, it all depends on what you want to see. For instance, "Two men looked out of prison bars; one saw mud, the other saw stars. Here are a few of the many "stars" I see: Michele Nottebart of Stoneham; Jim Beebe of Wakefield; Nancy Murphy of Woburn; Margielynn Stratton of North Reading; Maureen McGurn of Tewksbury; Cecelia Vigilante of Lynnfield; Edmond Baratta of Winchester; Nicole Higden of Burlington; Ben Nichols of Reading; and Frank Mazzoni of Wilmington.

Hilton at Colonial remodels pool and patio

A new expansion and improvement program at the Hilton at Colonial in Wakefield to create a larger and more up-to-date pool and patio area was announced this week by owner George W. Page.

The area surrounding the existing glass-domed year-round pool will be extended 15 feet through most of the area's circumference. Because of the circular configuration, that will serve to double the pool area, according to Mr. Page.

The existing glass dome will be raised some four feet and more than a dozen skylights, measuring four feet by four feet, will dot the flat roof surrounding the raised dome.

The glass sides of the pool will be replaced by vertical cypress siding to provide privacy for swimmers and sunbathers and for principals and guests at poolside parties.

There also will be new carpeting everywhere, perimeter planters, and indoor waterfall-foundation, whirlpool bath, and ping pong and bumper pool tables.

Mr. Page added that the section housing the Tahiti Bar will be upgraded and generally refurbished in keeping with the decor of the new sections.

The grassed patio will be enlarged to accommodate larger parties for weddings, clambakes, cookouts and other outdoor functions.

Another of the new features will be the erection of a high privacy screen to give the patio exclusivity.

Tupperware fundraising event

The Burnham Center offers adult education classes, dances and trips. The Burnham Center is sponsoring a Tupperware Sale as a fundraising event. Although the Center is only its second year, its service is utilized by the residents of Arlington, Burlington, Lexington, Melrose, Reading, Stoneham, and Wilmington.

Woburn. It is obvious from the Center's high enrollment in the classes and attendance at the dances that the enthusiasm for the events is still growing.

The Burnham Center receives no state or Federal monies. It relies on the fees charged for classes, contributions and fundraising. Therefore, the Burnham Center is sponsoring a Tupperware Sale as a fundraising event. The Center will receive 20 percent (cash) of the total sold.

The Center urges everyone to place their Tupperware order through the Burnham Center. For further information or to place an order to call 944-7798 or 273-0727. All orders must be received by March 24, 1984.

Stoneham resident keeps "other side" moving

Story By
Staff Sgt. Richard D. Glynn
FORT IRWIN, CALIF. — Army Sgt. Victor P. Petto Jr. of Stoneham, Mass., has become somewhat of a legend to units that visit this desolate training site in California's Mojave Desert. Petto is a member of one of the U.S. Army's "Opposing Forces" or OPFOR units that use Soviet tactics, vehicles and Warsaw Pact-style uniforms to confront visiting units from across the country in realistic war games that test the preparedness of U.S. armor and infantry forces.

Petto, 24, son of Victor and Eleanor Petto, 46 Main St., North Reading, Mass., is a tank systems mechanic assigned with the 1st Battalion, 73rd Armor, one of two OPFOR battalions at Fort Irwin.

"My job in the OPFOR is keeping the tanks and trucks running so we can accomplish any mission given us," Petto said. "My job really isn't different than any other unit mechanic. I find problems with tanks, trucks and motorized equipment and repair them."

While the use of Soviet tactics and vehicles makes training believable, a laser-equipped device called MILES (Multiple Integrated Laser Engagement System) allows the opposing units to harmlessly "fire" and "kill" each other on a simulated battlefield. MILES simulates small arms, cannon and rocket fire with eye-safe laser beam systems attached to the actual weapons. Hits activate beepers and flashing lights attached to harnesses on soldiers and vehicles, indicating "kills."

Located nearly 40 miles from Barstow, Calif., Fort Irwin is situated in the "high desert" between Los Angeles and Las Vegas. Temperatures can be extreme, climbing to more than 120 degrees in the daytime in the summer and plummeting to freezing at night.

While the 1,000 square-mile post has been used by the Army since the mid-1800s, Fort Irwin was officially opened as the Army's National Training Center in 1981.

"Living at Fort Irwin is nice in the winter," Petto said. "The winter months are very warm in the daytime and it gets a little chilly at night. The summertime is extremely hot. It gets up to 120 degrees. Inside a tank it can get up to 140 degrees. The work isn't bad, though. All you have to do is fight the heat."

Petto is a 1977 graduate of Stoneham High School.

Northeast Voke annual VICA Awards Banquet

The Northeast Metropolitan Regional Vocational High School VICA Olympics, and the Seventh Annual VICA Awards Banquet, were held in the school shops, and in the Anthony Moschella Memorial Cafeteria, on Wednesday, March 7, 1984.

The olympics are held in each shop each year, to select those VICA members who will represent their school in their trade areas, at the district olympics which are to be held at the Tri-County Vocational School in Franklin, Mass. on Thursday, March 22, 1984.

This year, 23 Vocational schools will be involved in these olympiads, and thus far five additional schools will be added in 1985 VICA olympiads. Logistically there isn't a vocational school large enough, and with all the facilities to handle these olympiads under one roof in Massachusetts. Therefore, in anticipation of future growth of membership and schools, only the Gold and Silver medalists will participate in the district and state competitions. The Bronze medalists will attend the state conference as voting delegates and/or alternate contestants.

All VICA members may compete in one or two areas: in their trade area, and in leadership. VICA emphasizes both trade skills, and leadership. The national theme "America's New Professionals" has an added theme, "Making US First."

District winners will go on to the state VICA Skill Olympics, which are to be held at the New Bedford Vocational School, on Tuesday, April 10, from there to an overnight stay at Dunfee's in Hyannis where the leadership competitions will be completed on Wednesday, April 11, 1984. Winners will be announced after the luncheon at the hotel. Gold medalists will complete their olympiad at the United States Skill Olympics (USSO) to be held in Louisville, Kentucky, in June, 1984.

The seventh Annual VICA Awards banquet festivities were conducted by the VICA school officers: David McKearney, from Reading — President; Liz Hogrell, from Revere — Vice-President; Kenny Nett, from Woburn — Secretary; Beth Burkhardt, from Malden — Treasurer; Sandy Knight, from North Reading — Parliamentarian; Alan Beckwith, from Woburn — Reporter; Kyle Harris, from Reading — Acting Club Advisor.

Mr. and Mrs. John Quattrocchi were seated at the head table, where Mr. "Q" was honored with a plaque signifying a new annual award to be made in his name each year, to a VICA member who best personifies the qualities of leadership, craftsmanship, and scholastic excellence. The school superintendent, Mr. Thomas Markham, Jr., presented Mr. Quattrocchi, with a resolution which will be made a part of school committee minutes. This resolution commending Mr. Quattrocchi's many years of devotion and contributions to the VICA program, and to the students both at the school and in the state. He also was presented a table made in the cabinetmaking department. Mr. Quattrocchi, has been retired because of health reasons.

Roving

give you five hundred thou a year, plus that baby blue Mercedes convertible you asked for.

Dupree: Look, Ken, I've given Canizaro's offer a lot of thought. I know I can get seven hundred and fifty thousand a year from the Generals, the Maulers or the Showboats. They even offered to throw in leopard skin seat covers in the Mercedes. Why should I play for Canizaro for a measly five hundred G's?

Fairley: O.K., Marcus, I'll call him back and see what he says about upping the pot to seven hundred and fifty thousand a year.

Dupree: I want a ten year, no-cut, no-trade contract with an escalation clause, plus bonuses for every yard I rush over a hundred a game and for every touchdown I make over fifteen a season. And I want a private locker room. I'm sensitive about female reporters checking out my rear end after a game.

Fairley: I'll see what I can do.

They hang up. Fairley calls back in fifteen minutes.

Fairley: Canizaro says he'll go for the incentives but no dice on the extra quarter mill a year.

Dupree: Then the heck with him! I'll sign with the Generals. They said they'd even throw in my own church.

Fairley: Canizaro said he'll send you to Tahiti for a month to think his offer over.

Dupree: I don't want to go to Tahiti. Unless Canizaro agrees to buy me the island. Then I might go. You call him back and tell 'im that, Ken. You're my agent and I want you to do that.

Fairley: First I should tell you this. He said he'd consider letting you play just home games. That way you won't get run down from all that jet lag.

Dupree: I like the sound of that. On my free time I can open up Marcus Dupree Southern Fried Chicken fast food restaurants. Call 'im back. Tell 'im I'll take the deal if he gives me the bonuses, the island, the church, the leopard skin seats, two hundred Marcus Dupree Southern Fried Chicken franchises and the two million in stock options.

Fairley: What stock options? Dupree: You remember, dummy. The Stars said they'd throw in two million dollars worth of General Motors stock.

Fairley: Canizaro is weakening, but I don't think he'll go for that, Marcus. Maybe a mill in Chrysler, if I stroke him in the right way.

Dupree: The heck with the stock. I want to be mayor of my own city. I wanna own my own city. How about Providence? No one would even miss Providence.

Fairley: Southern fried chicken isn't a big seller up there. Better off in Cleveland. In fact, I might be able to get you the entire state of Ohio. I'll call you back.

They hang up again. Then the phone rings a short time later.

Dupree (before Fairley has a chance to say a word): Thought it over, Ken. Don't need the stock. And forget the state of Ohio. I'll be too busy on the island anyway. I was reading in the paper just a minute ago that Kenny Rogers is selling his pad in California. Twenty-two mill. Even has its own gas station. Imagine that? A gas station, no less! Call Canizaro back and tell him I'll sign right this minute if he buys me that house and moves the team to Southern California. The Valley. We'll call the team the Valley Gargoyles. Get it? I'll even pass on the church. But I still want the island and the bonuses, plus five percent of the team's gross over the next ten years.

Fairley: Canizaro says he'll go for the island and the church. That's his final offer. The stocks are out of the question.

Dupree: Call him back. Tell him I'll sign, but I've gotta have Kenny Rogers' house! Man, Ken, will we get down out there! Movie stars, Valley girls, Marcus Dupree Southern Fried Chicken outlets at every corner, more movie stars, more Valley girls....

Fairley: Marcus, I'll call you back later.

Well, the saga went on. I'm not sure how much the national deficit will increase as a result of Marcus' demands, but last this columnist heard Joe Canizaro called the White House to ask President Reagan if he'd mind proposing an annual National Honor Marcus Dupree Day. It could be in the works. Dupree is now a Breaker and goodness knows what it took to get him to sign on the dotted line. Whatever it was I hope it remains a secret. Otherwise the next Marcus Dupree to come along will ask for L. well, maybe is own space shuttle.

And an android to run for him on every other down.

And....

Community Concert series

Jury's Irish Cabaret appears in Stoneham

On April 5, 1984, Jury's Irish Cabaret, from Dublin, Ireland, will be presented by the Greater Stoneham Community Concerts at the Stoneham Senior High School, 149 Franklin St. just off Stoneham Square, so shortly after St. Patrick's Day, that it is not too late to celebrate the music and dance that is uniquely Irish.

Jury's is the last concert of the 1983-84 Season of the local Concert Association, and, therefore, becomes a bonus or free concert to patrons who join the Association for the first time for the 1984-85 Season, by the concert date, April 5. Admissions are not sold for single concerts.

Memberships will be available at the above concert for adults, families, and students, as well as during Membership Week, April 2-7. Headquarters for Membership Week will be at the Stoneham Pharmacy, in Stoneham Square, 409 Main St., and will be open Monday through Friday from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. and on Saturday 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. For further information call the Headquarter's number 438-7449, or at present, 438-9232, or Mrs. Robert Leavitt, 944-5262.

A membership card in the Association entitles the bearer to the four local concerts during the coming season, as well as the Bonus Jury's Irish Cabaret. Reserved for the coming season are The New England Youth Ensemble, Chanticleer, a male a capella vocal ensemble, the Manhattan Rhythm Kings with 20's and 30's music, and Dewayne Fulton, master harpist from Lincoln Center, N.Y.

What is truly amazing about Community Concert membership is the extra privilege that members have of choosing to attend any of the three to five concerts that each local Community Concert Association presents in Salem, Lowell, Framingham, Worcester and Fitchburg, Mass., and in Dover, Concord, Manchester, Portsmouth and Nashua, New Hampshire, all within 45 minutes drive from the Boston area.

The spectacularly successful Jury's Irish Cabaret returns this season by popular demand with an all-new 1984 show. Making their fourth coast-to-coast tour, they're bringing the variety, the laughter, the lilting songs, haunting music, lively dances and that unique Irish flair for which they are justly famous.

North Americans, and indeed visitors to Ireland from all over the world, have found Jury's Irish Cabaret of Dublin to be one of the high points of their stay in Ireland's capital city. Beginning in 1964 in the old Jury's hotel it quickly established itself as the premier popular entertainment in Dublin's night life. When the Cabaret later moved to the present Jury's Hotel it lost none of its charm but in a larger and more sophisticated cabaret room was able to entertain larger audiences, and now has played to well over a million visitors.

As its fame spread abroad, the company began its series of foreign tours, visiting Sydney, Tokyo, Amsterdam, London, Paris, Canada, and the U.S. Wherever they go, family audiences are enchanted by the freshness of the performance, the exuberance of the music and dancing and the obvious delight the artists take in exhibiting their talent. And, above it all is the insistence of Irish traditional values in music and culture.

In the great modern revival of interest in ethnic and folk culture, Ireland's traditional music and dancing and humor occupies a high place. It is a surging vivacious music which lifts the heart and sets the feet tapping. Its spontaneous rhythms and harmonies need the dedicated performance of talented artists and that is exactly what Jury's Irish Cabaret provides. Do not miss the unforgettable evening of the best talent and traditions the Emerald Isle has to offer.

Community Concert Associations were begun in the U.S. about 50 years ago to fill the need for local communities to enjoy great musical entertainments close by, on a pre-paid membership basis, and with volunteer work, assuring concerts that are very reasonable in price, and available risk free of financial loss to a local organization. The Associations in the United States and Canada are affiliated with Columbia Artists, 165 W. 57th St., N.Y., N.Y. 10019.

For those who do not wish, or are unable to travel to city concerts, will find musical and dance entertainments available near their homes, or community. Greater Stoneham Community Concerts Association has brought concerts to the North Suburban area for almost 40 years. There are similar associations in hundreds of cities throughout the United States and Canada.

Readiness workshop for housewives

"When I started the course, I had no sense of direction and very little energy for the future. The group has given me many ways to get out of the rut I was in. I have a sense of direction and confidence now that will last a long time..."

These words describe one woman's experience with the job readiness workshop being offered for displaced homemakers at the Lowell YWCA.

New applicants are now being accepted for the second workshop cycle scheduled to begin in late March. Eight women completed the initial cycle of this intense 45 hour group experience. The group aids women who must leave their roles as homemakers and seek paid work. Confidence building, assertiveness training and skills assessment activities are part of the workshop package as well as specific job search skills such as preparing a resume or getting ready for an interview. The program is also sometimes able to provide leads on currently available jobs. One woman from the first workshop series was hired this month to work with a local elderly service program as a result of a contact made through the program.

The job readiness workshop is free of charge and is open to those who are separated, divorced or widowed, who have worked mainly in the home and who are now over 35 and in need of paid work because of their changed circumstances. The program is supported by funding from the Massachusetts legislature through Bay State Skills Corporation.

In addition to the job readiness workshop, the displaced homemaker program offers individual job and life skills counseling to eligible participants and is running a Wednesday evening support group for displaced homemakers who are job searching or who have recently begun new jobs and want support in coping with the world of work.

For more information about the program, or to arrange an interview, call Kathy Desilets at 454-0686.

How to buy a used car — without getting a lemon

Unless you happen to be an auto mechanic, buying a used car can be a risky business. According to a survey conducted by the Massachusetts Public Interest Research Group (MASSPIRG), one-third of the over 400 used car buyers surveyed stated that their cars were defective. What can you do to avoid buying a lemon?

There's no formula to ensure that your purchase will be a good one, but the following five steps should constitute a pretty good "lemon repellent."

First, have the car looked over by a mechanic before you buy. A good mechanic should be able to spot most serious defects. The cost of a thorough inspection by a mechanic should be somewhere between $15 to $50, and it's well worth it. Remember, what you don't know about the car you buy can hurt you a lot. If a dealer won't let you have a mechanic inspect the car, go to a different dealership.

Second, ask the dealer what their warranty policy is — and don't settle for a vague answer like "just bring it back if you have any problems." Then, make sure that the warranty terms written on the contract of sale are the same as those quoted to you on the lot: too often, a salesman will tell the customer that he's got a thirty-day warranty, and the sales contract will say "thirty days, drive train only" or "as is."

As for those "as is" or "drive train only" or 50-50 warranties, avoid them like the plague. They're illegal in Massachusetts — and for good reason. Every car sold by a dealer in Massachusetts comes with the so-called "implied warranty of merchantability," which means that it must be fit to be driven safely on the roads for a reasonable time. That's the law, and if the dealer is blatantly violating it, you might ask yourself whether you wouldn't be better off dealing with someone who has a little more respect for the minimal consumer protection laws that our state has.

Third, don't be fooled by a shiny exterior, a nice paint job or a "clean" car. If you haven't had the car inspected by a mechanic, you may not have much to go on besides the car's appearance, but that only goes to show the importance of getting an inspection. Don't assume that a good-looking car was well-maintained by its prior owner — it's just as likely that the car has been cleaned up by the dealership to make it more saleable.

Fourth, when you've narrowed it down to one particular car, ask the dealer for the name and address of the car's prior owner and call that person before you sign on the dotted line. The dealer is required by law to give you that information if you ask, so if he tells you that he can't because they don't keep those records or they just don't know, be suspicious.

Fifth, and most important, don't allow yourself to be pressured by a high-powered sales technique. If the level of pressure begins to be uncomfortable to you, walk off the lot. The story that "this car is such a steal, it won't be here if you don't buy now" is the oldest line in the book. If you aren't ready to make up your mind, don't buy. That car, or another one just as good, will still be there tomorrow.

MASSPIRG consumer attorney Jody Forchheimer advises, "In buying a used car, an ounce of protection is worth a pound of cure. Unfortunately, once you've bought a lemon, the consumer protection laws in Massachusetts may be too weak or too vague to help you. Your best protection is to check out the car and the dealership before you buy."

MASSPIRG is backing a used car lemon law to follow you on the lemon law passed to protect new car buyers in 1983. If you've bought a "used lemon," call MASSPIRG at (617) 423-1796.

A hug today helps a child grow towards tomorrow

"Psychologists tell us that problems such as drug and alcohol abuse and adolescent pregnancy are rooted in a lack of self-esteem," says National PTA President, Elaine Stienkemeyer, in her introduction to the March issue of the National PTA's magazine PTA Today. The issue focuses on developing self-esteem in children and youth, and offers suggestions to parents on how they can help their children feel good about themselves.

"How often do we tell a child, 'good job,' or hug them when they have done something we are proud of or just to show that we care?" asks Stienkemeyer. "We can learn how to create a positive environment for our children through planned activities and responses that say 'You're okay.'"

According to educators Donna Raschke and Judy Wedman at the University of Northern Iowa, writing in PTA Today, parents can help a child gain self-esteem by providing activities and experiences that result in feelings of success. Raschke and Wedman believe that if these activities are structured so that the child can successfully complete them, he or she experiences a sense of mastery.

But, when a child does not successfully complete a task or comply with parental demands, many parents get caught in the "criticism trap." Raschke and Wedman assert that, "When parents spend more time criticizing than they spend praising their child, the message received by the child is 'you're not O.K.'" In order to escape the criticism trap, the article reminds parents to: "praise your child, don't anticipate misbehavior, be specific in your praise by labeling improved behavior, and reward improvement."

Trivia

Platinum is so rare that all of the metal ever mined would fill a cube only 14 feet square, yet it is used in the manufacture of perhaps one out of five products, National Geographic reports.

Waialeale, a mountain on the island of Kauai in Hawaii, draws an average of 460 inches of rain a year, making it the wettest spot on Earth, National Geographic points out.

For those parents who are wondering if their child has low self-esteem, Stanley Coopersmith, a child psychologist at the University of California at Davis, developed a list of characteristics that serve as possible indicators of poor self-esteem. Michèle and Craig Borba, authors of Self-Esteem: A Classroom Affair, cite Coopersmith's list of symptoms in the March PTA Today. The child with poor self-esteem may be: fearful and timid; bullying and bragging; unable to make decisions; reluctant to express opinions; and expects failure. But, according to the Borbas, "These characteristics are warning signals and should not be used as the final determiners of low self-esteem."

Other articles in the March issue of PTA Today include: "Ten Activities to Enhance Self-Esteem."

"Some Ways to Help Your Child Feel Special."

"Children as Volunteers: To serve is a chance to grow."

"How Mothers and Fathers Rear Their Daughters and Sons."

Copies of the March issue of PTA Today are available for $1.00 each by sending a check or money order (made payable to National PTA) to National PTA, 700 North Rush Street, Chicago, Illinois 60611.

The scars of an abused child can stay with us all his life.

In any way you can think of, the effects of child abuse are devastating.

Each year, over one million American children suffer from child abuse.

Over 2,000 of those abused children die.

And, for many of those who live, the effects of an abusive childhood may influence their entire lives. And ours.

Many teenage drug addicts and teenage prostitutes report being abused children. So do juvenile delinquents and adult criminals.

Because we pay to respond to those problems, we are all the victims of child abuse.

Yet child abuse can and must be prevented.

The National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse is a private, charitable organization that knows how to prevent child abuse.

But we need your help to do it. We need money. We need more volunteers. Send us your check today, or write for our booklet.

And, remember, if we don't all start somewhere, we won't get anywhere.

The Ford Hall Forum is the oldest free public lecture forum in the country. Its programs are broadcast locally over WGBH-FM and over public radio stations throughout the country. For further information, call 338-5350.

From Ford Hall at Northeastern to a commuter train on its way to Wakefield, from art in bloom to quartet harmony, COMING ATTRACTIONS tries hard to come up with something for everyone. But if we missed the mark on an event of interest you know about, write, care of this local newspaper and tell us all about it. Hopefully we can find as many things to do with the body as there is this week for the mind.

Ice arena to close

A standing room only crowd discussed the coming closing of the Wilmington Youth Ice Arena Monday night at the selectmen's meeting with varying attitudes. Over 80 persons were present to talk and present ideas about the closing of the rinks.

Ellen McMillan of Freeport Drive was the leadoff speaker. Over 500 Wilmington youngsters use that ice, she said, at least twice a week. She listed clubs and member numbers. Two hundred and three teams, in the (intertown) hockey league depend on the Wilmington rink, she said.

It was her hope that the town will consider buying or leasing the rinks. It is impossible to go elsewhere. Rinks all around are "booked up."

McMillan raised thoughts of buying the rinks through a state "self help" program. It might be possible to get up to 70 percent reimbursement.

Ron Swasey, recreation director of Wilmington told of the 1978 town meeting, where there had been hope of a 50 percent financing, "but the town turned it down."

Selectmen Stewart, DePasquale and Ballou were among the early talkers about the programs. Stewart had talked with Don Harridon, manager of the rink. He had wondered about contacting Mr. Crocker, owner of the rink, who was not well.

DePasquale discussed the possibility of forming a limited partnership to operate the skating rinks. There would have to be 40 persons, at least. He had also been talking about enlisting Wilmington firms, and said that Bernard Restuccia of Wilmington Ford was willing to discuss the idea of financing.

Ballou spoke of the $10 thousand monthly utility (light) bill of the rinks. It was his expressed hope that there could be assistance in financing through the school building program (SBAB). When high schools are constructed he said, there is aid in rink construction. This had been discussed in the past, in connection with Wilmington High School.

More than a few speakers regarded the coming closing of the rinks as a case where industry was dictating to the program. Frank Armstrong of Woburn Street and Carol Redler of the Lake Street spoke, at times, in this theme.

Redler related the beginnings of the present program, headed up by Dave Trickett and Flo Ryan. Selectman Jim Banda and others had worked on an ice program. It was her contention that Crocker had been issued his permit to build a rink "as a favor." She suggested several times that the town take action to revoke his permit.

Redler told the meeting that the North Shore Figure Skating Club had wanted to buy the Forum ice rink in Billerica, but the club was unable to move. "Therefore this is a hardship."

"This permit can be pulled away," she said. "He was given it for a purpose." The records could be found she said, in the selectmen's minutes.

Buzz Stapeczynski had checked the 1969-70 records. He had found no references to Crocker, he reported. There was reference to Banda and to Dave Trickett, in May 1969.

Another speaker was Gerry Tully of West Street. The cleaning men, he charged,

"don't clean up." The general attitude of the rink, he said, was "to hell with Wilmington."

Wilmington, Tully said, "has produced a tremendous program for the town, for youth hockey and other ice sports." The two rink setup means with 22 to 24 hours of operation in a day, that, "if run by the town it certainly could pay for itself."

Joe Ferrara of Billerica is the coach for the Wilmington Youth Hockey. He told the selectmen there are 203 teams in the league. He has been trying to put together a program so the league can continue, and skate within a five mile area. "If it cannot be done it (the league, ed.) will have to dissolve."

Ferrara told the selectmen that he rents the rink for 90 hours a week, at $90 an hour.

Later that same evening, in a second talk, Ferrara claimed that the rink "was never managed." The Assabet Valley rink, he said, is fully automated. There is no "nine inch ice" there - a reference to a claim by another person that the ice had been allowed to get that thick in the middle part of the rink.

Ferrara had nice words to say about Crocker. "I don't want anyone to think ill about that man. This is bothering him, very much. He is an ill man."

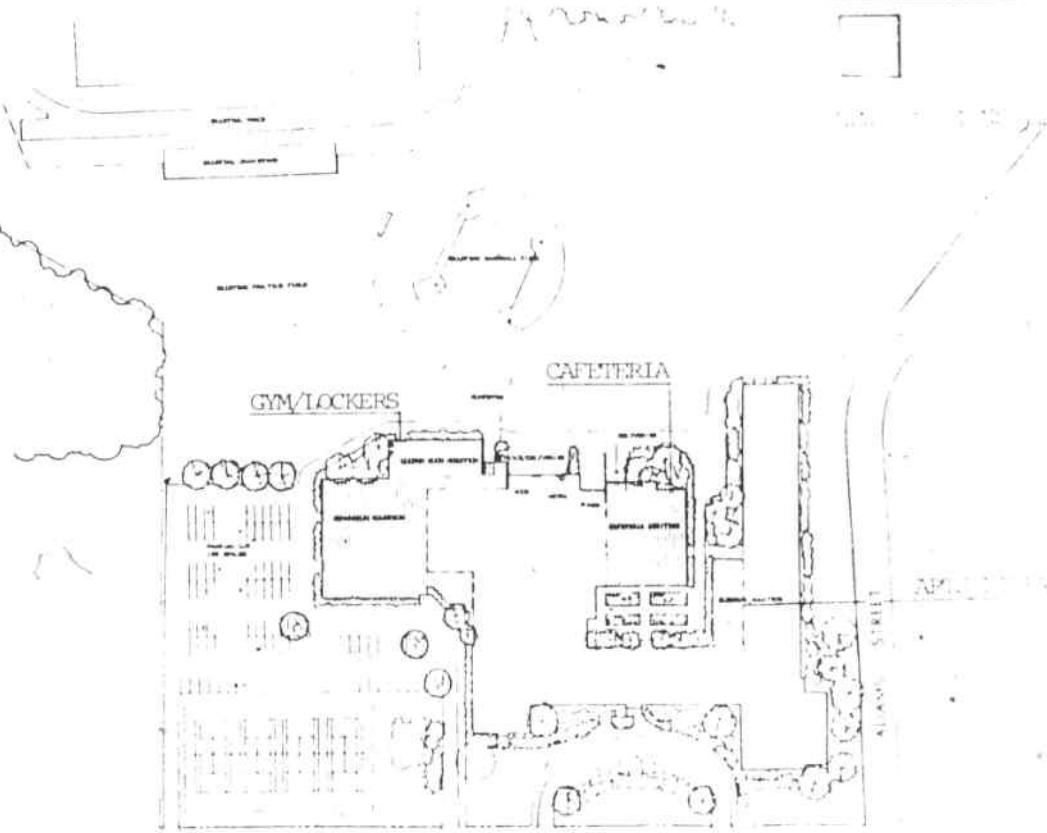

Ferrara told of a three hour meeting with Crocker, and Mr. Hamill who runs the pro shop at their rink, in an effort to keep the rink running.

Ron Swasey, Wilmington recreation director expressed his opinion that "he wants out," meaning, presumably, Mr. Crocker. The reason, Swasey said, is the 59 acres that Crocker owns. Crocker has troubles, and one of them is some of the kids, and the commercial firms that rent buildings from Crocker.

This closing meant that Wilmington will not have any commercial recreation, Swasey said. There are no bowling alleys, and now no ice rinks. "Something is happening, in an educational way."

Swasey felt that the board of selectmen should show Crocker it was not in his best interest to close the rink. "We can show him his scheme will work only if

Proposed additions to Wilmington High School are shown as the shaded area in this sketch, prepared by the architect.

Renovation stresses academics

The price of proposed renovations and additions to Wilmington High School is, at this time, a serious question. The town last fall enlarged the planned athletic facilities, in a town meeting vote. The net result was an increased cost, and a defeat in a Proposition 2 1/2 override referendum.

Those additional athletic facilities are not a part of the question today. The Permanent Building Committee plans are at a utilitarian minimum, designed to promote the educational facilities of the school.

An outstanding fault of the present building is its failure to provide for instruction of students, in today's sciences and mathematics. Modern science labs are needed, badly, to meet today's competitive standards.

The library is totally inadequate. Health and safety standards must be improved.

The cost, to the average home owner will be $1 per thousand valuation per year, for twenty years. For a home valued at $70 thousand, this equals $70 a year.

This paper, editorially supports the renovation and improvement plans for Wilmington High School. It urges the people of Wilmington to support the proposals, in the Question 2 1/2 Override, on April 21.
